1. Tunnels under the Sahat Tepe (sic) in Plovdiv were started by the Germans in 1943. These tunnels were for the use of the local population as air-raid shelters. The tunnels have four entrances which are seven meters wide and about three meters high. Inside the tunnels are wider, and there are several small corridors leading off the main tunnels. These tunnels have their own water supply and compressed air. Recently the tunnels have been cleaned out and some of the corridors enlarged.
2. A series of tunnels under Nebet Tepe (sic) is under construction. These tunnels will be larger than those under the Sahat Tepe. There are smaller tunnels being constructed under the other Tepe in Plovdiv, and it is alleged that they will be used for storage.
3. The members of the Plovdiv Women's Union are undergoing first-aid and air-raid warden training. They meet twice a week for instruction.
